

UK Community of Research Software Engineers

The RSE community was founded to support the people who develop software used in research in the UK.

Back in March 2012, we began raising awareness of the research community's reliance on RSEs. In the last year, we have made excellent progress in gaining recognition for RSEs. In the coming year, we want to continue this work, and attract more people to the community so that we have the weight of numbers to gain better appreciation, support and career development for this vital role.

If you would like to be a part of the community, come along to our AGM this month at King's College London. We welcome both software engineers who are moving into research and researchers who are developing their own tools. The event is free, thanks to our sponsors at MaudsleyDigital, but we have limited space, so please register for a place.

15/09/2014: Annual General Meeting

16/09/2014: Mental Health Hackday

Following the AGM, we are organising a hackday in conjunction with the NIHR Biomedical Research Centre for Mental Health at King's College London and the South London and Maudsley NHS Foundation Trust. The event is free thanks to our fantastic sponsors. Amazon and Microsoft are providing cloud computing resources, MaudsleyDigital is providing a venue and most of the refreshments and Github are providing pizza and version control.

You don't have to be an RSE to attend, If you have any ideas about how we could use technology, mobile apps and sensor data to improve the daily lives or clinical treatment of people dealing with mental illness we'd love to hear from you.
